

Follow the World's leaders with a stay at Carbis Bay's newest luxury villas

Following Cornwall having welcomed world leaders to the previously unknown seaside town of Carbis Bay for this year's G7 summit, the luxury Una St Ives is set to extend their world-class welcome with the launch of a collection of exclusive villas.

Nestled in the Cornish countryside, Una St Ives is less than a mile from picture-perfect Carbis Bay near St Ives. Summer 2021 sees the first wave of high-end two and three-bedroom villas with private hot tubs join the current collection of 29 stylish holiday lodges at the resort.

Making the most of the coastal and countryside views, inverted living is a key element of the new properties, built with iconic Cornish stone, giving the sense of rising from the land. Expect an understated style: Airy Scandi-influenced interiors utilising traditional materials in a contemporary way, with the villa's design and positioning embracing the area's world-famous artists' light. With open plan living on the first floor encompassing a high-spec kitchen, dining and living area plus private terrace with outside dining, this space is made for socialising. With access to the outdoors on both levels of the villas, spacious bedrooms are found on the ground floor, opening to the distinctly Cornish landscaped grounds, private hot tub and plentiful views.

A destination five-star resort, the Spa at Una encourages guests to take time for wellness, with an extensive range of pampering and holistic treatments, a sun-lit 15-metre swimming pool, jacuzzi and steam rooms alongside the Life Fitness gym. The award-winning Una Kitchen, headed-up by chef Glenn Gatland, offers fresh, honest, wood-fired cooking at its finest in a relaxed and stylish atmosphere. Serving contemporary Mediterranean-inspired dishes, made with the finest locally sourced ingredients,

Una Kitchen is also a popular local's destination. Located in an outstanding setting, Una St Ives brings together all the elements of a perfect holiday with spectacular sandy beaches close by and the best of West Cornwall on the doorstep.

Una St Ives' friendly reception team is on hand to curate the very best in holiday experiences. Whether that's exploring the Tate St Ives, Barbara Hepworth Museum and St Ives' artisan cafes, booking must-visit restaurants, seal watching at Godrevy, dolphin spotting, surfing at Gwithian or a trip to the Minack theatre - they have the local knowledge and insider information.

With the world's leaders and their entourage discovering the delights of the Cornish coast, countryside and culture this summer, Una St Ives' new luxury villa collection is landing at the right time as global attention turns to this small spot in the West of Cornwall. A coastal enclave with a sheltered golden beach surrounded by tree covered cliffs, Carbis Bay was once a hub for fishermen to launch their boats. Now a place to enjoy the laid-back Cornish lifestyle, Carbis Bay boasts only a handful of hotels and resorts, with Una St Ives a top choice for the area.

Computer generated imagery of the new Una villas

A self-catering stay at Una St Ives in a new 2-bedroom villa will cost from £480 for a 3-night break in low season; a 3-bedroom villa will cost from £570 for a 3-night break. Includes leisure club access. A number of pet-friendly villas and lodges are available, and Una Kitchen also welcomes well-behaved dogs. Visit www.unastives.co.uk for more information and to book.

ENDS

PR CONTACT:

For further information please contact Samantha Kirton, Lucy Jenner-Brown or Hayley Newnham at Hope Yard PR: E: hy@hopeyardpr.com, M: +44 7786 166556

UNA ST IVES MEDIA ASSETS:

Download high-resolution press images using this link

Notes to editor:

Kingfisher Resorts acquired the site in 2016 and is investing tens of millions of pounds in developing the resort over the next few years, with plans for a 55-unit apartment-hotel, 93 holiday villas in addition to the 29 lodges already constructed, and enhanced ancillary leisure facilities. This will make it the largest luxury resort in the South West, helping to cement Una St Ives as the flagship destination in Cornwall.

The new villas are also available to purchase under a holiday home ownership scheme. Visit <https://www.unastives.co.uk/villa-sales> for more details.