

BUDOCK VEAN HOTEL

Apprentice is a South West WINNER

Apprentice Chef de Partie Joseph Halloran from the Budock Vean Hotel has WON Rising Star at National Apprenticeship Awards SW regional final. The awards, which celebrate the achievements of extraordinary apprentices and the businesses that employ them, are a showcase of talent across the country. As winner at the regional stage, Joe will now head to London for the National Finals.

Budock Vean, the country house hotel on the Helford River, has a long history of supporting apprenticeships and training programmes across the business working alongside the team at Cornwall College.

‘Joe has become a really capable, strong and reliable team member of our kitchen team in quite a short space of time. He’s already running a large breakfast service and assisting across all areas of our work. We’re over the moon that he won at the regional finals in Bristol, very well deserved and we’re keeping everything crossed for the national finals next month’
Christian Jordan, Head Chef at Budock Vean

‘Winning the rising star award is a reflection on Joe and the whole team at Budock Vean. Under Christian’s stewardship Joe has had the space and opportunity to learn and grow into his new role – we’re delighted that he won, this really is a pat on the back for the whole kitchen. Congratulations everyone!’ Georgia Blundell, Head of HR at Budock Vean
