

Cornwall's Hidden Horticultural Wonders Revealed on an Exclusive Secret Garden Tour

For Immediate Release

CORNWALL, England – In 2024 uncover some of England's most magnificent hidden gardens on an exclusive new tour experience hosted by horticultural expert and author Tim Hubbard.

Timed with the launch of Hubbard's new book "Secret Gardens of Cornwall: A Private Tour", small groups can journey into secluded Cornish gardens and estates normally unattainable to the public. Discover what grows best in Cornwall's mild climate, observe the unique challenges facing coastal gardeners, and gain privileged access for conversations with impassioned owners and gardeners.

"We're thrilled to offer this insider's look into Cornwall's horticulture," says Niall MacDougall managing director of Cornwall DMC, the local group travel specialist. "It's a chance to pull open the gates and learn the secrets of cultivating in this distinctive peninsula."

The bespoke experiences may include private tours of Burncoose, Penjerrick, Minack Theatre's cliffside garden, and other highlights. Special entries into Dame Barbara Hepworth's sculpture garden and other not-open-to-public spaces provide rare looks behind the hedges.

Guests will savour the sights, fragrances and tastes that make Cornwall a gardener's paradise - whether a workshop on cultivation techniques or cream tea in a secluded location.

Accommodations, transport, and specialized guides round out the custom trips. Costs vary based on group size and inclusions. Availability is limited for this 2024 launch season.
